A PUBLICATION OF NASD REGULATION, INC.

13.3 FALL ISSUE 1999

Web CRD Deploys On Schedule

On August 16, NASD Regulation, Inc. (NASDRSM) deployed, as scheduled, its new, state-of-the-art, registration and licensing system—Web CRDSM. The Internet-based system supports all functionality of the 18-year-old Legacy system that it replaces, plus it delivers enhanced registration and licensing functionality. The new, Web-based CRD system is vastly more capable than the Legacy CRD system. It will truly revolutionize the registration and licensing process and virtually eliminate paper filings and communications. Its relational database structure, based on the new uniform registration forms, will make CRD information, through reporting and data downloads via the Web, far more useable. The elimination of paper filings and duplicative information from amendments (through system completeness checks) will streamline and expedite the licensing process. Web CRD leverages the Internet and provides proven technology to ensure data integrity and security for all system users.

The first month of deployment for Web CRD has been both a productive and a challenging one. Even with the system performance issues that users have experienced during peak user hours, the number of filings processed is far exceeding that of the same period last year. From deployment on August 16 through August 31, 1999, Web CRD processed over 65,000 registration filings, 77 percent of the total number of filings processed in the entire month of August 1998. To date, over 180,000 filings and 327,000 registration approvals have been processed. More than 28,000 firm and regulator users have been entitled to use Web CRD.

With the implementation of Web CRD, new electronic uniform registration forms were also introduced. The new forms consist of formatting and technical changes to make them consistent with the Web-based approach of Web CRD. The new forms incorporate Disclosure Reporting Pages (DRPs) customized to elicit information relevant to a particular type of disclosure event. The new uniform Forms U-4, U-5, BD, and BDW are available for review or printing on the NASD Regulation Web Site at www.nasdr.com.

Certain broker/dealer information contained in the Legacy CRD system was not converted to Web CRD. That information includes: Disclosure (Schedule DRPs), Direct/Indirect Owners (Schedules A and B), Control/Financial Information, Industry Arrangements, and Affiliated Firms. A broker/dealer is required to refile this information when it files its first electronic Form BD amendment in Web CRD, but not later than December 15, 1999. If this missing information is not filed at the time of the first amendment, the filing will not pass the completeness check built into Web CRD to ensure that all mandatory fields for the Form BD are completed. For more information regarding Form BD and the electronic refiling, which is discussed in SEC Release 34-41594, File No. S7-16-99 (July 2, 1999), see the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) Web Site at www.sec.gov.

Comprehensive information on Web CRD is available on the NASDR Web Site at www.nasdr.com. This includes the new uniform registration forms, the Web CRD Tutorial, the Web CRD functional navigation guides, an updated Regulators' Directory, the BD Refile templates and timelines, CRD publications, and other information pertinent to the new Web CRD system. To reach the CRD and Web CRD Internet Pages of the Site, click on "Members Check Here" and then on "Central Registration Depository".

With access to Web CRD available through the Internet, NASDR is striving to provide the highest level of security possible and has put many security measures in place. Every firm must identify an Account Administrator whose responsibilities include enabling Web CRD user accounts for the firm, re-setting passwords, assigning Web CRD privileges, unlocking user accounts, and instructing users as to how to change initial passwords. For any entitlement questions or assistance, please contact the Gateway Call Center at (301) 212-8181. Also, if you are not yet entitled, please contact the Call Center at the above number to obtain the required forms for entitlement.

Web CRD is available Mondays through Fridays from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m., Eastern Time (ET). The Gateway Call Center is available from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., ET, to answer questions, research issues, or provide assistance. You may contact the Gateway Call Center at: (301) 212-8181 or via e-mail at webcrd@nasd.com.

The August 16th release of Web CRD is just the beginning. NASD Regulation is committed to the continuous improvement of Web CRD through a series of scheduled releases that enhance investor protection, respond to changes in the industry and the regulatory environment, improve ease of use, and leverage technological advances.

Web-Based FOCUS Launched Ahead Of Schedule; System To Be Used For Upcoming Third-Quarter Filings

NASD Regulation is pleased to announce that it launched the new Web-Based FOCUS application ahead of schedule. Members must use this new system to submit upcoming third-quarter FOCUS filings (due October 25th). This new system replaces PC FOCUS.

Web-Based FOCUS allows members to submit FOCUS filings conveniently over the Internet to NASD Regulation. Following are questions and answers about the new system. Questions not addressed here may be directed to (800) 321-NASD.

Q. Will Web-Based FOCUS be available for the October 25th form filing deadline?

A. Yes, it is now available for members that provide FOCUS filings to NASD Regulation. Please note, however, that the PC FOCUS application, which operates through Sprint, will not be available for the filing.

Q. How does a member firm access the new system?

A. To access Web-Based FOCUS, input the following Internet address in your Internet browser address window:
<https://regulationformfiling.nasdr.com>.

Note: Firms must be entitled to access Web-Based FOCUS. See next question to learn how.

Q. How does a member prepare for Web-Based FOCUS?

A. To prepare for the transition member firms should already have completed and submitted the Regulation Applications User Accounts Acknowledgment Form (UAAF) and Regulation Applications Administrator Entitlement Form (RAEF). To request a copy of these forms, please call 800-321-NASD or send an e-mail to nasdregfiling@nasd.com.

Q. Why is PC FOCUS being replaced?

A. NASD Regulation is replacing all applications for member regulatory filings with Web-based applications for filing over the Internet. (See next question to read some of the advantages of this new system.)

Q. What are the advantages of moving to a Web-Based FOCUS system versus PC FOCUS?

- A.
- Members will be able to view and access previous filings online.
 - Immediate verification of receipt.
 - No need to load software on the PC.
 - Filing from any PC versus only being able to file from the PC loaded with PC FOCUS software.
 - User Name/Password will be used to logon to the Web-based system versus PIN numbers.

Q. What if I have additional questions?

A. Call 800-321-NASD or send an e-mail to: nasdregfiling@nasd.com.

Check the NASD Regulation Web Site (www.nasdr.com) for updated information.

Remember: The 1999 third-quarter FOCUS filings must be submitted through the new Web-Based FOCUS application.

Year 2000 Readiness Program

Effective communication is important as broker/dealers work to assure investors that the industry is appropriately addressing Year 2000 issues. To facilitate communication, the NASD has developed a program that will give members the opportunity to disclose their Year 2000 progress to investors, customers, the general public, and other interested parties.

The NASD Year 2000 Readiness Program will allow members to display a Year 2000 readiness letter on the NASD and NASDR Web Sites (www.nasd.com and www.nasdr.com, respectively). These letters are intended to provide information that will serve to inform the investing public of their broker/dealers' ability to handle Year 2000 problems and keep their money and assets safe. Visitors to the Year 2000 Web Pages on these Web Sites will be able to search by firm name or broker/dealer number.

Member firms may voluntarily provide the NASD with a statement of their Year 2000 readiness that is furnished on company letterhead and signed and authorized by senior management. NASD Executive Representatives of member firms were sent an e-mail in August directing them to a sample letter. This sample letter and guidelines are still available for viewing on the NASD and NASDR Web Sites. However, each firm is solely responsible for the content of its own Year 2000 readiness letter and may customize this letter as necessary.

The NASD reserves the right to refuse any letters that do not comply with the objectives of this initiative.

Readiness letters should be mailed to the NASD, where originals will be imaged and displayed on the Internet. This information will be collected and available to the public through the end of this year.

The Letter Submission Guidelines below should be followed:

- ✦ Each broker/dealer firm must submit separately.
- ✦ Unsigned and/or incomplete letters will not be accepted.
- ✦ Letters should be no longer than one page in length.
- ✦ The CRD file number must be that of the broker/dealer firm submitting the letter. Enter your firm's CRD file number on the letter. The CRD file number is needed to record companies that have responded to this initiative.
- ✦ Letters are to be signed by those authorized to sign FOCUS reports.
- ✦ It is recommended that each broker/dealer firm submitting a letter keep a copy for its files.
- ✦ Return your firm's letter using the mailing address on the next page:

*NASD Year 2000 Program Office
Attn: Year 2000 Readiness Initiative
15201 Diamondback Drive
Rockville, MD 20850*

- ❖ All letters will be made available to the public.
- ❖ Letters received will be updated on the Web Sites on a monthly basis.
- ❖ Member firms may update their letters after their initial submission. The updated letter will replace that firm's original letter.

If you have further questions or need assistance in completing this effort, please contact the Year 2000 Member Services Support Program Office at (888) 227-1330 or at the e-mail address y2k@nasd.com.

Readiness Project Frequently Asked Questions

- Q. Does NASD or NASDR require us to submit a letter?*
- A. No. Participation is not required of members. This service is offered at no charge to members that wish to use this opportunity to make their Year 2000 readiness status known to investors, their customers, the general public, and the securities industry.
- Q. Can I fax my letter to the NASD?*
- A. No. Please send only original documents by mail. Faxed documents will not be accepted since they tend to be of low quality in appearance and difficult to scan.
- Q. When will this Web Site service be available, and when will letters be online to view?*
- A. This service should be available in the next month or so or as soon as we begin receiving letters to display. Letters will be added to the Web Sites in monthly updates.
- Q. What are my legal responsibilities if I submit my own custom-worded letter?*
- A. Members are welcome to submit letters of their own construction or to use the NASD sample provided to members. In either case, firms must accept sole legal liability for the content of the documents. Firms may wish to consult with a legal professional prior to submitting their letter to the NASD.
- Q. Should I submit a copy of the letter to the SEC, as done for the Form BD-Y2K submitted in April?*
- A. No. The NASD is offering its members this service using the NASD and NASDR Web Sites to make this information public. Form BD-Y2K filings are 'as of' specific dates and are available on the SEC Web Site. The NASD service will allow members to keep their progress and readiness current for investors to view.

Year 2000 Investor Kit

The NASD Year 2000 Program Office, with the SEC, the Securities Industry Association (SIA), and the Investment Company Institute, have developed a Year 2000 Investor Kit with valuable communications for investors. It includes checklists, frequently asked questions, resources, and other general information that address investors' concerns about the Year 2000 challenge. The Kit is available on the NASD and NASDR Web Sites (www.nasd.com and www.nasdr.com) and was mailed to NASD member firms this summer. NASD members may want to share this information in discussing Year 2000 issues with its customers. If you have questions about the Kit, please contact the NASD Year 2000 Program Office by e-mail at y2k@nasd.com or by calling toll-free at (888) 227-1330.

Decimalization Update

With nine short months until the SEC-proposed June 30, 2000, industry conversion from fractional to decimal trading, the NASD continues its education campaign to help members prepare. Decimalization refers to the conversion of all securities industry systems from fractional to decimal pricing.

The NASD Decimalization Program Management Office (Program Office) kicked off its industry education and awareness campaign in May. Since then, many of the details related to decimal trading have taken shape, providing insight into what the industry can expect before, during, and after the conversion. For a general discussion of Decimalization, see the Summer 1999 issue of the Regulatory & Compliance Alert, NASD Special Notice to Members 99-39, or visit the Decimalization Web Pages at www.nasd.com.

The SIA Committees

The SIA formed a Senior Decimalization Committee, comprised of representatives from across the industry, including the NASD. This provides guidance on the conversion and makes recommendations to the SEC. The Senior Committee is supported by four industry-wide subcommittees: Implementation, Testing, Market Data Vendors, and Communications. The NASD participates on all of the subcommittees, and chairs the Implementation Subcommittee.

Implementation

The Implementation Subcommittee has been working to define and compile industry specifications for both the technical and business sides. The technical specifications, how decimal pricing will look, and what formats each exchange will support, provide important information for member firms that need to remediate code. The SIA is collecting these formats, and posting them on its Web Site at www.sia.com. The Decimalization Program Office has posted the available Nasdaq-Amex Market Group specifications (including new vendor formats) in the Specifications section on the Program Office Web Pages at www.nasd.com.

The SEC asked the SIA to submit formal written implementation, testing, and communication plans to converting the industry to decimal pricing. The Implementation Subcommittee has drafted a plan, which includes a three-phased implementation. In the phase-in, a limited number of securities listed on the major markets would be traded in decimals for five weeks, from July 3, 2000, through August 4, 2000. This means that members' systems must be able to process fractions and decimals by that time.

In the second phase of the proposed implementation plan, all securities would be traded in decimals for eight weeks, from August 7, 2000, through September 29, 2000. During this time an evaluation team, made up of representatives from exchanges/markets, member firms, market data vendors, and clearing corporations, would collect data and analyze how the industry is handling decimal trading. The evaluation team would examine functionality, message traffic, and operational aspects of decimal trading. Based on the findings, this evaluation team would make a recommendation to the SEC as to whether the industry is prepared to go to full implementation of decimal trading.

Non-Mandated Point-to-Point Testing

The Testing Subcommittee is recommending that each exchange/market encourage members to test the functionality of decimals, once each exchange or market is ready to test. Testing will not involve scripts. Each market will notify the firms that should test, and schedule testing dates beginning in March 2000. Exchanges/ markets would then report results to the SIA, and that data would in turn be provided to the SEC, as proof of industry readiness for conversion. If the SEC approves the recommendation, this means there would be no mandate on testing as with Year 2000.

Note: The Testing Subcommittee will publish a "How To Test Guide".

How The NASD Can Help Members Prepare

The Program Office has developed a schedule of high-level milestones to help member firms convert to decimal pricing by the June 30, 2000, guidelines. This schedule is available on the Web at www.nasd.com. Members may also call the toll-free number (888-227-1330) to request a brochure about Decimalization. We will also publish Notices to Members and more Regulatory & Compliance Alert articles, post frequent Web Site updates, and participate in various industry conferences, including SIA meetings, and the October NASD Regulation annual Fall Securities Conference in Seattle (for NASDR conference information, see the NASDR Web Site: www.nasdr.com).

The Program Office has developed sample project plans for member firms to use in their conversion efforts. Plans are available on the Web at www.nasd.com, or by calling the toll-free number: (888) 227-1330. At this point, members should be completing their analysis of affected applications, and preparing to remediate or replace code and/or applications.

Questions about this article may be directed to the Program Office at (888) 227-1330 or via e-mail at decimals@nasd.com. Members may also check the Program Office Web Pages on the NASD Web Site at www.nasd.com. The Program Office updates the Web Site frequently as information becomes available.

SECURITIES CONFERENCE

District Directors Securities Conference Open Forum

At the May 19-21, 1999, NASD Regulation Spring Securities Conference, an open forum was conducted with NASD Regulation District Office Directors and home office executives. Conference attendees, primarily representatives of NASD members, asked a number of questions encompassing a variety of subjects. This article is the second in a two-part series to capture many of the questions and the answers provided during this session. Part 1 appeared in the Summer 1999 issue of the Regulatory & Compliance Alert.

Participating in the forum were: Mary Alice Brophy, Executive Vice President, Member Regulation; Daniel M. Sibears, Senior Vice President and Deputy, Member Regulation; Bill Jackson, District Director, Cleveland District Office; David Leibowitz, Senior Vice President and District Director, New York District Office; John Nocella, Senior Vice President and District Director, Philadelphia District Office; Willis Riccio, Vice President and District Director, Boston District Office; Carla Romano, Vice President and District Director, Chicago District Office; Alan Wolper, District Director, Atlanta District Office; and Bernerd Young, Associate District Director, Dallas District Office. Note that questions and answers have been edited for clarity and length. Considering the forum in which the answers were provided, readers should not rely on this article as definitive guidance or formal interpretive advice.

Written requests for interpretive advice may be directed to the NASD Regulation Office of General Counsel at (202) 728-8071. Questions about this article may be directed to Daniel M. Sibears, Member Regulation, NASD Regulation, Inc., at (202) 728-8221.

Note: The NASDR annual Fall Securities Conference will be held October 20-22, 1999, in Seattle at the Sheraton Seattle.

Q. How should the mail review be handled in outlying, nonregistered branch offices, or for example, in someone's home? Does the mail need to be reviewed in those offices?

A. The requirements to supervise and review correspondence applies to main offices, OSJs, registered branches, and non-registered locations. The location of the office and the number of persons working from a particular location do not alter a firm's duty in this area. As a result, all firms must have explicit policies and procedures in place to review mail, correspondence, sales literature, and other communications.

Q. What is the percentage of complaints received by the NASD via the Internet versus hard copy or regular mail?

A. The NASD provides a mechanism through which complaints may be filed via the Internet. Complaints submitted via the Web, however, are still a relatively small percentage of the overall complaints that come in to the NASD.

Q. Does the NASD have a way to determine 'hits' on the Web Site whether a visitor is a client or a broker/dealer?

A. No. However, when someone files a complaint, the NASD asks for certain information which generally alerts us as to whether the individual is a bona fide customer or not.

Q. Our firm recently received an inquiry from the NASD concerning best execution for fixed income securities. Does the best execution theory apply to debt securities? What's the NASD's view?

A. The general concept of best execution clearly applies. The ability to ensure best execution will be enhanced as more information is captured through, for example, FIPS, the MSRB reporting systems, and other mandatory reporting.

Q. Many firms that allow broker order entry provide personal portable computers to their brokers. If those brokers are able to enter trades from a remote location, does this become a satellite location? If so, how would one license this scenario?

A. The NASD does not, within its rules, have a definition for a satellite location. And an order entry on a personal computer of a broker who otherwise works out of a specific location probably would not produce a branch registration. Obviously, it is incumbent upon every firm to have a good understanding of the work performed at each location. Looking forward, the issue becomes how the SEC and the NASD define a branch office and the impact that technological advances have on this issue.

Q. Can you comment on what rules—those rules termed 'obsolete'—might be amended?

A. There is a major NASD initiative underway to identify and eliminate or amend obsolete rules. As a part of that effort, some issues have surfaced with respect to how we should distinguish institutional from retail customers. We're really early on in the comment period about that, so, the NASD would not predict what changes will occur. However, it is likely that many changes will take place.

Q. Has the NASD thought about different ways, perhaps, to examine an institutional firm versus a retail firm?

A. The NASD is in the midst of a process to revolutionize its examination program. The NASD's program has grown from a "one size fits all" mode, which worked well for the organization for many years. This does not work as well for the NASD now. With as much diversity among the firm membership, and as much specialization and different types and sizes of firms, we are in the process now of literally changing the way we do our examinations. The new program addresses how to deal with specialized firms differently, and how to incorporate more technology into the process. This is intended to have NASD examiners spend less time gathering data and more time analyzing high-risk situations, leading to having better regulatory intelligence tools and performing examinations in a less obtrusive manner.

Q. Does that include having specialized examiners?

A. There will probably always be a need for NASD Regulation to be generalists and have a solid knowledge of the broad spectrum of the industry. However, with that said, it is likely that the NASD's future is more specialization, perhaps within District Offices, perhaps within regions, depending on what the specialties are, and nationally as well.

ADVERTISING REGULATION

Ask The Analyst

"Ask the Analyst" provides member firms a forum to pose questions to the NASDR Advertising/Investment Companies Regulation Department (the Department) on a variety of topics. Please note that we cannot guarantee all questions will be answered in this publication. However, we will respond to all questions we receive either here or by contacting you directly. If you have any questions or comments, please contact the Department at (202) 728-8330.

Correspondence

Q. Under NASD Notice to Members 98-83 correspondence is defined as a communication prepared for delivery to a single current or prospective customer. Does this mean that any letter or e-mail that goes to more than one person meets the definition of sales literature? If not, at what point does a communication become sales literature?

A. Currently, any communication such as a letter or e-mail message sent to more than one person is deemed to be "sales literature" under the definition set forth in NASD Conduct Rule 2210(a)(2).

Q. Does NASD Regulation have any percentage guidelines as to what would be an appropriate sample size for review of correspondence under NASD Conduct Rule 3010(d)?

A. Although there is no percentage guideline for sampling correspondence, NASD Notice to Members 98-11 regarding Rule 3010(d) does provide a list of "Guidelines for Supervision and Review." In part, these guidelines advise member firms creating procedures for the review of correspondence to consider their structure, the nature, and size of their business, and whether procedures must be tailored to different segments of their business or to different types of representatives. Members should review carefully Notices to Members 98-11 and 99-03 before establishing procedures for the sampling of correspondence.

Q. Does NASD Regulation expect member firms to monitor "internal" correspondence such as communications between a branch manager and the firm's main office the same way as correspondence with customers?

A. NASD Conduct Rule 3010(d) only refers to correspondence with the public relating to a member firm's investment banking or securities business. Members are reminded that the requirements of NASD Conduct Rule 2210 may apply to internal correspondence if the correspondence itself is distributed to members of the public, or if information in the correspondence is communicated to members of the public, particularly if the information concerns the desirability of a owning a specific security.

Stocks/Research Reports

Q. If a communication to customers is deemed to be a recommendation, what additional procedures or information is required?

A. For advertisements or sales literature, the member firm has several obligations pursuant to NASD Conduct Rule 2210(d)(2)(B) as follows:

- ❖ the registered principal reviewing the communication for compliance must ensure that the firm has a reasonable basis for the recommendation;
- ❖ the communication must provide, or offer to provide upon request, available investment information supporting the recommendation; and,
- ❖ recommendations on behalf of corporate equities must provide the price at the time the recommendation is made.

In addition, the communication must disclose in specific terms several potential conflicts of interest that may exist between the member firm and the issuer of the security. Boiler plate language indicating the member firm "may or may not make a market in these securities" in itself does not fully satisfy the requirements. The potential conflicts requiring disclosure are, as applicable:

- ❖ that the member firm recommending the securities usually makes a market in the securities being recommended, or in the underlying security if the recommended security is an option, or that the firm or its associated persons will sell to or buy from customers on a principal basis;
- ❖ that the firm and/or its officers or partners own options, rights, or warrants to purchase any of the securities of the issuer whose securities are recommended, unless the extent of such ownership is nominal; and,
- ❖ that the firm was manager or co-manager of a public offering of any securities of the recommended issuer within the last three years.

Broker/Dealer Use Only Material

Q. Would an advertisement appearing in a publication such as Registered Representative magazine be subject to the standards for communications with the public set forth in NASD Conduct Rule 2210?

A. Because this type of publication is available to individuals who are not registered with NASD member firms, this type of advertisement is subject to the same standards as any other advertisement, including the standards for approval, recordkeeping, filing, and content set forth in NASD Conduct Rule 2210.

Filing Requirements And Electronic Communications

Q. Our Web site simply describes our firm, the securities we offer, and the qualifications of our principals. Do we have to file the site with the Department for review?

A. The filing requirements for this type of Web site are identical to those for any other advertisement as defined in NASD Conduct Rule 2210(a)(1). If the NASD member firm has never filed with the Department, it must file the Web site 10 days prior to first use and must continue to pre-use file all advertisements for a period of one year. The year starts on the date the firm's first filing is received by the Department. If the firm has already completed this one-year filing requirement, the products discussed in the Web site will dictate whether all or part of the site must be filed. If the Web site discusses options, collateralized mortgage obligations, or an investment company performance ranking for which the firm has created a customized subcategory, the firm must file the relevant portions of the site 10 days prior to first use. In addition, if the Web site discusses mutual funds, unit investment trusts, variable insurance products, government securities, or direct participation programs, the firm must file the relevant portions within 10 days of first use. See NASD Conduct Rules 2210(c) and 2220(c) for all of the filing requirements and possible exemptions.

Request For Comments On Proposed Amendments To Advertising Regulation Rules

The NASD is requesting comments from members and other interested parties on proposed amendments to modernize, simplify, and clarify the rules governing member communications with the public. The comment period expires on October 29, 1999.

One of the most significant aspects of the proposal is to exempt all member firm communications to institutional investors from internal pre-use firm approval and NASD filing requirements. Form letters and group e-mail to existing customers and fewer than 25 prospective retail customers also would be eligible for this exemption. Additionally, the proposal would exempt article reprints and certain press releases regarding investment companies from the filing requirements and simplify the content standards applicable to member communications.

See NASD Notice to Members 99-79 for more specific information. To submit your comments visit the NASDR Web Site's (www.nasdr.com) Request For Comments Web Page.

CORPORATE FINANCING

Corporate Financing To Consider Requests For Exemption Related To Direct Participation Program Compensation

NASD Conduct Rule 2810 prohibits members from participating in a public offering of direct participation program (DPP) and real estate investment trust (REIT) securities if the organization and offering expenses, including the compensation payable to members, is not fair and reasonable. Members must file information with NASD Regulation's Corporate Financing Department (the Department) concerning public DPP or REIT offerings in which they participate.

Members and their associated persons may receive continuing compensation, but only according to stringent standards. In 1997, NASD Regulation requested public comment on a proposal to revise the compensation structure permitted under the Rule. The proposal was intended to promote compensation arrangements that would more closely align the interests of members and their customers, by codifying new standards to permit members to receive service fees and trail commissions. All those who commented supported this goal, but they did not believe that the proposed amendments would best achieve it. Among the concerns raised was the possibility that the proposed amendments would not adequately take into account different DPP and REIT structures.

Largely in response to these comments, NASD Regulation has decided not to codify specific rules for the receipt of service fees and trail commissions. Instead, NASDR will encourage innovation in compensation structures for DPPs and REITs through its exemptive process under the Rule 9600 Series, which allows the Department to grant exemptions on a case-by-case basis.

The Department will therefore consider requests by members for exemptions from NASD Rule 2810 for service fees and trail commissions in connection with a public offering of DPP or REIT securities. Among the factors that the Department will consider are the following:

- ❖ in general, the extent to which the member has demonstrated that the compensation arrangement (including the source and structure of payment of the service fee and trail commission) is fair and reasonable;
- ❖ whether participating firms will only receive a service fee if they provide specific, continuous investor services; and
- ❖ the conditions under which trail fees will be paid, particularly if the program or trust does not provide a meaningful return to investors.

REGULATORY SHORT TAKES

NASD Regulation Cautions That Firms Should Disable Their SOES Preferencing Feature During Passive Market Making

NASD Regulation recently imposed sanctions against a firm for a passive market-making violation that resulted from an automatic execution. NASD Regulation found that the firm violated Rule 10b-6A when it automatically purchased a security at a price above the highest independent bid during the two-day cooling-off period when such activity was prohibited. Rule 10b-6A has since been replaced by Rule 103 of Regulation M.

Under former Rule 10b-6 (now Regulation M), persons participating in a distribution of securities, including issuers, underwriters, dealers, and affiliated purchasers were prohibited from bidding for or purchasing a security until they had completed their participation in such distribution. Rule 10b-6A, however, permitted NASD Market Makers to continue to engage in market making in a security while participating in a distribution of that security, i.e., passive market making, subject to certain conditions. One of these conditions was that a passive Market Maker's bid could not exceed the bid of a Market Maker not participating in the distribution, i.e., the "independent" bid. In addition, a passive Market Maker was prohibited from purchasing securities above the highest independent bid during the two-day cooling-off period prior to the start of the distribution.

In the recent disciplinary case, the firm's posted bid was equal to the independent bid of Market Makers not participating in the distribution. The firm violated the Rule, however, when it purchased shares through a preferenced automatic execution in the Small Order Execution SystemSM (SOESSM) at a price that exceeded the highest independent bid. SOES accepts orders that may be "preferenced" or directed to a particular Market Maker, and it automatically executes those orders at the inside market price, or the best price available in the market at the time of the transaction. In the recent disciplinary case, the firm failed to disable its SOES preferencing feature and it automatically purchased shares at the inside bid—which was above the highest independent bid for the security—while engaged in passive market making of the security during the two-day cooling-off period when such purchases are prohibited. The firm was not aware of the purchase until after the automatic execution had occurred, and it quickly canceled the trade. After considering the firm's attempts to remedy the problem and the other mitigation present, NASD Regulation ordered that a Letter of Caution be imposed against the firm. In so doing, NASD Regulation cautioned that its decision "should not be read to suggest that violations of the passive market-making rules warrant relatively light sanctions." Rather, it emphasized that members should take care to disable their SOES preferencing features before engaging in passive market making.

Members may refer to the September 1997 edition of the NASD Regulatory & Compliance Alert, Vol. 11, NO. 3, for further discussion on passive market-making procedures and trading restrictions under Regulation M.

Use Of Optical Storage Technology

As a reminder, any member firm considering using optical storage technology must notify its designated examining authority (DEA) prior to employing such technology [SEC Rule 17a-4(f)(2)(i)]. Records required to be maintained by SEC Rules 17a-3 and 17a-4, including order tickets and confirmations, may be maintained via micrographic media (microfilm, microfiche) or electronic storage media (optical disk, CD-ROM) if such media meets specific conditions [see SEC Rule 17a-4(f)(2)(ii) for details]. However, records required by SEC Rules 15g-2 and 15g-9 ("penny stock" rules) are specifically excluded from electronic storage of any type.

In addition, SEC Rule 17a-4(f)(3)(vii) requires that member firms exclusively using electronic storage technology for some or all of its record preservation must have arrangements with at least one third-party, down-load provider. The provider must submit an agreement to the member firm's DEA which will permit the SEC and appropriate DEA to access the firm's records when needed.

Any notices and representation(s) required by SEC Rule 17a-4(f)(2)(i) and 17a-4(f)(3)(vii) should be directed to:

National Adjudicatory Council Provides Guidance On Sanctions Imposed In Egregious Unauthorized Trading Cases

Registered representatives who effect unauthorized transactions risk the likelihood of having severe sanctions imposed against them. In general, unauthorized trading involves a registered representative effecting purchases or sales for a customer's account without permission or in a manner inconsistent with a previously agreed upon trading strategy. When a finding of unauthorized trading is made, the NASD Sanction Guidelines recommend that an adjudicator impose sanctions that correspond to the level and severity of the misconduct. The Sanction Guidelines recommend, in an ordinary case of unauthorized trading, suspending the registered representative in all capacities for 10 to 30 days, and further suggest that in "egregious" cases the adjudicator should "consider a longer suspension (of up to two years) or a bar."

Although the Sanction Guidelines do not define what constitutes an "egregious" case, a number of decisions issued by the National Adjudicatory Council (NAC) indicate that there are three broad categories of egregious conduct. The first is quantitatively egregious unauthorized trading, where the sheer number of unauthorized transactions warrants the imposition of weighty sanctions. The second involves unauthorized trading that is egregious because it is accompanied by certain aggravating misconduct, e.g., where the registered representative attempted to conceal the misconduct or hinder an investigation, or where he or she has a history of effecting unauthorized transactions. The third category involves qualitatively egregious unauthorized trading, discussed below.

The first NAC decision to make an express finding of qualitatively egregious unauthorized trading was In re Ted D. Wells, Complaint No. C07970045 (NAC July 24, 1998). In that case, the NAC found that the respondent's admittedly intentional misconduct—from which he benefited to the detriment of his customer—was so antithetical to his duty to his customer that public interest would be served by barring him from the securities industry, notwithstanding that he effected only a single unauthorized trade and had no disciplinary history.

Recently, the NAC decided another case involving allegations of unauthorized trading. In In re Daniel S. Hellen, Complaint No. C3A970031 (NAC June 15, 1999), the NAC found that the respondent had effected three unauthorized transactions in three customer accounts. The NAC imposed a $25,000 fine and a two-year suspension after determining that the respondent had engaged in qualitatively egregious conduct.

The NAC's Hellen decision elaborates on the principles underlying the sanctions imposed in Wells (and other cases involving qualitatively egregious unauthorized trading). In brief, the NAC explained that two factors are relevant to its determination as to whether unauthorized trading was qualitatively egregious. The first concerns the strength of the evidence that the trades at issue were unauthorized. The second concerns the evidence relating to the respondent's motives. In finding the conduct of the respondent in Hellen to be qualitatively egregious, the NAC relied on highly persuasive circumstantial evidence that the respondent acted in direct contradiction to his customers' express instructions to their detriment. In addition, the NAC noted that the respondent had engaged in a pattern of using high-pressure sales tactics and a combination of delaying tactics and obstacles calculated to dissuade and obstruct the customers in their efforts to reverse unauthorized transactions.

Market Regulation Compliance Report Cards

On September 24, 1998, staff of the Market Regulation Department (Market Regulation) of NASD Regulation began making available quantitative reports for each NASD member firm concerning its compliance with trade reporting, firm quote, and best execution. The reports are being provided to firms as a compliance aid to assist them in ensuring that they are submitting transaction reports in a timely manner, handling SelectNetSM liability orders in compliance with the Firm Quote Rule, providing best execution to its customers, and, if necessary, taking appropriate measures to improve its performance in these areas. Each report contains information for the previous calendar month and is available on the 24th of each month or the first business day after the 24th if that day falls on a weekend or holiday.

The reports are available to view at www.nasdaqtrader.com; however, given the proprietary nature of the firm-specific reports, a firm must subscribe to the Proprietary Trading Data section of the Web Site to access any of the reports. For a detailed description of each of the reports and subscription information, please call Nasdaq Subscriber Services at (800) 777-5606. Although these reports are designed and intended to be a preventive compliance tool, the information contained in these reports may indicate the existence of rule violations that may be pursued by Market Regulation staff depending on the circumstances. Accordingly, NASD Regulation strongly recommends that members subscribe to the compliance report cards in order to enhance their supervisory procedures.

If you have any questions concerning the Trade Reporting report card, call Patricia Casimates, Market Regulation, NASD Regulation, Inc., at (301) 590-6447.

If you have any questions concerning the Firm Quote Compliance or Best Execution report cards, call Joe McDonald, Market Regulation, NASD Regulation, Inc., at (301) 212-3835.

QUALIFICATIONS/TESTING/CONTINUING EDUCATION

Questions And Answers Regarding Requirements For Equity Traders And The Series 55 Examination

NASD Regulation has received a number of inquiries from member firms and registered representatives regarding the registration requirements for equity traders. NASDR is publishing the following questions and answers to provide the membership with additional guidance on the scope of this new registration rule.

Background

Effective April 1, 1998, NASD Regulation amended its rules to require representatives who trade equity securities in The Nasdaq Stock Market® (Nasdaq) and/or the over-the-counter (OTC) market to register as equity traders. NASD Rule 1032(f) established a new registration category (ET) and qualification examination (Series 55) for equity traders.

Specifically, NASD Rule 1032(f) states that a representative must register as a "Limited Representative—Equity Trader" if the representative is engaged in proprietary trading or the execution of transactions on an agency basis in equity, preferred, or convertible debt securities. The Rule also applies to persons who directly supervise those who are engaged in such proprietary trading or execution of agency transactions. However, the Rule does not require registration if the person is associated with a member whose trading activities are conducted principally on behalf of a registered investment company.

To register as an equity trader, the representative must be registered as a General Securities Representative or a Limited Representative—Corporate Securities and must pass the Series 55 examination. The Rule includes a grace period and allows persons who were acting as Nasdaq or OTC equity traders when the Rule became effective to have two years to pass the Series 55 examination. The NASD announced the approval of the amendments in NASD Notice to Member 98-17 and an extension of the filing period in NASD Notice to Members 98-60.

Since the new Rule became effective, NASD Regulation has processed approximately 17,000 requests for the Series 55 examination, with at least 90 percent of the candidates receiving the extended expiration date of May 1, 2000. As of July 31, 1999, over 5,300 traders have taken this examination. NASD Regulation staff continues to monitor the test content, under the direction of an industry group, to ensure that the questions are current and accurate.

Administrative Requirements

Q 1. What examinations or registrations would satisfy the prerequisite requirement for the Series 55?

A. The prerequisite requirement can be satisfied if the representative has passed any of the following examinations:

- ❖ Series 7—General Securities Representative Examination
- ❖ Series 17—U.K. Module of the Series 7 Examination
- ❖ Series 37/38—Canadian Module of the Series 7 Examination
- ❖ Series 62—Corporate Securities Representative Examination

Q 2. Must the immediate line supervisor of an active registered equity trader be registered under Series 55?

A. Yes. This is specifically required by the Rule.

Q 3. A broker/dealer requests the Series 55 examination for its traders and they receive the extension until May 1, 2000. The broker/dealer, however, does not make such a request for the traders' direct supervisors. What impact does the failure to request the Series 55 examination for these supervisors have on the broker/dealer's ability to trade Nasdaq and/or OTC equity securities?

Question

A. Such supervisors are required to qualify promptly. Failure to do so may result in the broker/dealer having to cease trading Nasdaq and/or equity securities. These situations will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis and may result in formal disciplinary action.

Q 4. A registered representative originally was granted the two-year grace period and then transfers to another firm, will the two-year grace period remain available to him/her?

A. The grace period will continue to be available to the candidate upon transferring to another member firm. In other words, the candidate will continue to have until May 1, 2000, to pass the examination.

Q 5. A broker/dealer requested the Series 55 examination for its traders, and the traders were granted the extended grace period. What impact would the termination of all these traders have on the broker/dealer's ability to continue to trade Nasdaq and/or OTC equity securities?

A. This broker/dealer will have to cease trading Nasdaq and/or OTC equity securities until it registers a trader who has passed the Series 55 examination or received the extension until May 1, 2000, while at another firm.

Q 6. How long must a registered representative wait before retaking the Series 55 examination after each failure?

A. Candidates who have been granted the two-year grace period for the Series 55 examination must wait 30 days after each failed attempt before retaking the Series 55 examination. If the candidate fails the Series 55 examination more than three times, the waiting period continues to be 30 days, rather than the 180-day waiting period normally required after the third and all subsequent failures. This exemption applies ONLY to the Series 55 examination, and it is ONLY for those candidates who have been granted the two-year grace period. The normal waiting periods apply in all other circumstances.

Q 7. If a registered representative who originally had been granted the two-year grace period until May 1, 2000 fails the Series 55 examination, will the registered representative's registration still continue to reflect the same May 1, 2000 expiration date?

A. Yes. Upon requesting the re-exam, the registered representative's valid window for the Series 55 examination will remain in effect with the May 1, 2000 expiration date.

Q 8. Does the NASD provide any training materials for candidates to study for the Series 55 examination?

A. The NASD has published a study outline that lists the topics and rules tested on the Series 55. This study outline can be ordered from NASD MediaSourceSM, at (301) 590-6142. In addition, the Nasdaq Trader Manual contains valuable information covered on the test and is available as a viewable and printable document on the Nasdaq Trader Web Site at www.nasdaqtrader.com. Neither publication is intended, however, to be the sole training material for the examination.

Q 9. If it is determined that a member has failed to adequately supervise an equity trader and allowed this person to act in a capacity for which the person was not registered, how will such violations be treated?

A. Violations of the equity trader registration requirements will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis and may result in formal disciplinary action.

Proprietary (Principal) Transactions

Q 10. A person processes one or more principal transactions for the investment account of the member by personally calling or electronically communicating with the contra-side to the principal transaction. Is this person "engaged in proprietary trading" and therefore required to be registered as a Series 55 representative, even if the transaction is subsequently compared/confirmed by the member's clearing firm?

A. Yes. A person who executes a transaction for any account in which the member has a direct or indirect interest by sending the trade to the member's trading desk or to another member for execution is "engaged in proprietary trading" and thus, is subject to the equity trader qualification and registration requirements.

Q 11. A person processes simultaneous principal transactions for customers of the member by personally calling or electronically communicating with the contra-side to the principal transaction. Is this person "engaged in proprietary trading" and therefore required to be registered as a Series 55 representative?

A. Yes. The person is "engaged in proprietary trading" because processing simultaneous principal transactions for customers means that the person's firm executes transactions for the member's investment account with both the customer buy and sell orders when the cross takes place.

Q 12. A person processes one or more principal transactions for the investment account of the member or processes simultaneous principal transactions for customers of the member by communicating the order to the member's clearing firm which then calls or electronically communicates with the contra-side to the principal transaction. Is this person "engaged in proprietary trading" and therefore required to be registered as a Series 55 representative?

A. Yes. The person is "engaged in proprietary trading" because the order is being executed for the member's investment account, even though the order is sent to the member's clearing firm for execution.

Q 13. A fully disclosed broker/dealer is trading Nasdaq and/or OTC equity securities for its proprietary account. The proprietary trading decisions are made by the president of the broker/dealer. The trades are submitted to its clearing firm for execution; the broker/dealer is not directly involved with the execution. Would the president be subject to the equity trader registration requirements?

A. Yes. The president of the broker/dealer would be subject to the requirements of NASD Rule 1032(f) because as a proprietary trader, he is placing the firm's capital at risk, even though the trades would be submitted to the clearing firm for execution.

Q 14. Does the definition of "equity trader" include those proprietary traders whose primary activities are in exchange-listed securities?

A. Yes. NASD Rule 1032(f) explicitly covers proprietary traders who effect any transactions in equity, preferred, or convertible debt securities in the Nasdaq or OTC markets, including those proprietary traders who effect transactions in exchange-listed securities in the OTC or "third" market. For purposes of this Rule, "program" or "basket" traders would be considered proprietary traders.

Agency Transactions

Q 15. What constitutes executing a customer transaction on an "agency basis"?

A. A customer transaction is executed on an "agency basis" when the order is executed with another broker/dealer without the intervention of a principal account at the firm where the order is executed.

Q 16. A person processes agency transactions for customers of the member by personally calling or electronically communicating with the contra-side to the agency transaction. Is this person required to be registered as a Series 55 representative, even if the transaction is subsequently compared/confirmed by the member's clearing firm? Does NASD Rule 1032(f) provide for a de minimis exemption?

A. The person is "engaged in the execution of transactions on an agency basis," and would, therefore, be required to be registered as a Series 55 representative. The rule does not contain a de minimis exemption.

Q 17. A person processes agency transactions for customers of the member by personally calling or electronically communicating with the contra-side to the agency transaction with which the member has a payment-for-order-flow arrangement. Is this person "engaged in the execution of transactions on an agency basis" and therefore required to be registered as a Series 55 representative?

A. The person would be required to be registered as a Series 55 representative. The "payment-for-order-flow arrangement" issue is not a factor.

Question

Q 18. A person processes agency transactions for customers of the member by communicating the order to the member's clearing firm which then calls or electronically communicates with the contra-side to the agency transaction. Is this person required to be registered as a Series 55 representative?

A. No. The person is not involved in the "execution of transactions on an agency basis." Rather, he or she is acting as an order processor.

Q 19. A person, on behalf of an introducing member, processes agency transactions for customers of the member by communicating the orders to the member's clearing firm. The member's clearing firm thereafter completes the transaction in-house, by, for example, buying or selling as a Market Maker in the security or completing the transaction as a dual agency trade with one of its customers. Is this person required to be registered as a Series 55 representative?

A. No. The trading decisions are made by the clearing firm.

Q 20. A person at a member firm enters and executes the firm's agency OTC orders with the Market Maker with the best offering price. Is this person required to be registered as a Series 55 representative?

A. Yes. The person is effecting agency trades with the Market Maker.

Trading/Execution Systems

Q 21. Would a trader who executes equity transactions for customers through an ECN be subject to the equity trader registration and qualification requirements?

A. Yes. The trader is executing a trade on an agency basis.

Q 22. A person enters an order into SOES. Is that person required to register as an equity trader?

A. Yes. SOES provides for the automatic execution of orders in Nasdaq securities. By entering an order into SOES, the person is "executing a trade."

Q 23. A person enters an order into SelectNet. Is that person required to register as an equity trader?

A. Yes. SelectNet allows Level 3 users to direct, negotiate, and execute orders in Nasdaq securities with Market Makers. By entering an order into SelectNet, the person is "executing a trade."

Order (Entry) Processing

Q 24. A broker/dealer maintains clearing agreements with three firms. The personnel at the broker/dealer randomly choose one of the three with which to effect customer transactions in Nasdaq or OTC securities. Would these persons be required to register as equity traders?

A. If these persons forward all customer orders to the clearing firms for execution, they would not be required to register as equity traders, since they are not executing transactions.

Q 25. An order entry firm sends an order to a Market Maker and the Market Maker executes the trade with a contra party. The order entry firm has the right to reject the trade in ACT. Does the representative at the order entry firm have to qualify as an equity trader?

A. No. The representative at the order entry firm does not have to register as an equity trader because he or she is not involved with the terms or execution of the order even though the firm may decide to reject the order in ACT.

Q 26. A broker/dealer uses an electronic order entry system to relay its customers' orders to the firm's clearing broker or its internal trading system for execution. Would a registered representative who accepts customer orders and inputs them in the order entry system be subject to the Series 55 requirements?

A. No. The registered representative is not effecting the trades in the Nasdaq or OTC markets.

International Markets

Q 27. A person sells foreign equity securities to U.S. institutions in the United States on an agency basis. The trades are executed through a computer system connected directly to the foreign stock exchange. Would this person need to qualify as an equity trader under NASD Rule 1032(f)?

A. Since the trade is executed on a foreign exchange, the Series 55 requirement would not apply. However, a person who sells foreign equity securities to U.S. institutions in the United States must be registered as a general securities or corporate securities representative.

Q 28. Are listed stock traders who effect only after-hours transactions in foreign markets engaged in OTC trading, and therefore, subject to the Series 55 requirement?

A. No. NASD Rule 1032(f) is not intended to include trading activity conducted in foreign markets.

Q 29. Does the definition of "equity trader" include persons in foreign offices who effect transactions in non-U.S. securities in non-U.S. markets that are reported to a non-U.S. exchange or regulatory body?

A. No. NASD Rule 1032(f) is intended for traders executing transactions in covered securities in The Nasdaq Stock Market or domestic OTC market.

Convertible Debt Securities

- Q 30. A fixed income broker/dealer not involved with convertible issues periodically purchases equity securities for the firm's investment account with excess corporate funds. Would this firm be subject to the requirements for NASD Rule 1032(f)?*
- A. Yes. Proprietary traders are required under the Rule to register as equity traders. Note that this Rule does not have a de minimis exemption; therefore, one or more proprietary trades would require the trader to be registered as an equity trader.
- Q 31. Are bond traders who execute a small number of transactions in convertible securities included in the definition of equity trader?*
- A. Yes. There is no de minimis exemption for bond traders who do an occasional transaction in convertible securities.
- Q 32. A trader whose primary business is trading straight debt securities will occasionally trade the straight debt securities as units that include a warrant component, or the trader will trade the warrant itself. Would the trader be subject to the Series 55 requirement?*
- A. When the unit is sold with both components, the trader would not be subject to the Series 55 requirement. However, if the components are separated, the trader who sells the warrant would be required to register as an equity trader if the warrants trade on Nasdaq or the over-the-counter market.

Miscellaneous

- Q 33. Are a member's "buy side" traders who act solely on behalf of advisory accounts under management by the member included in the definition of "equity trader"?*
- A. Yes. NASD Rule 1032(f) only exempts traders whose activities are conducted on behalf of an affiliated investment company that is registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940. This exemption does not apply to traders for advisory accounts managed by a member.
- Q 34. A member firm runs a day-trading operation where customers can execute their own Nasdaq trades directly with a specific Market Maker. Would the supervisor at this firm be required to pass the Series 55 examination?*
- A. Yes. Member firms that provide their customers with the ability to execute their trades through a Nasdaq execution service must ensure that such trades comply with SEC and NASD rules. The member is responsible for honoring all executions that occur and for effectively monitoring and supervising the entry of such orders. Therefore, the supervisors at such firms must satisfy all applicable NASD qualification and examination requirements, including the requirements of NASD Rule 1032(f).

Q 35. The traders at a broker/dealer act as broker's brokers. They do not conduct business with public investors. They only transact business with other brokers to find contra parties for convertible debt transactions. Are they required to register as equity traders?

A. Yes. They are committing their firm's capital when they find the contra party with which the trade can be done. They are "engaged in proprietary trading."

Q 36. The manager of a broker/dealer's securities lending desk is responsible for checking the availability and rates of securities the broker/dealer needs to borrow to facilitate its trading strategies by contacting securities lending desks where the broker/dealer maintains prime broker accounts. Is the manager required to register as an equity trader?

A. No. The manager is borrowing the securities, not buying or selling them.

Q 37. Does NASD Rule 1032(f) contain any exemptions for firms that do a limited amount of business in Nasdaq and or over-the-counter equity securities?

A. No. Member firms must comply with the requirements of this Rule regardless of the volume of their business.

Q 38. Are listed stock traders who sometimes execute transactions in 19c-3 securities in the Nasdaq market included in the definition of "equity trader"?

A. Yes. The definition of "equity trader" in NASD Rule 1032(f) includes all traders who execute any transactions in equity, preferred, or convertible debt securities in the Nasdaq or OTC markets. No exemption is provided to traders whose primary trading activities take place on a securities exchange and who only occasionally execute transactions in Nasdaq or OTC.

Q 39. Are institutional salespersons who report trades executed by their firm's traders for the salespersons' customers included in the definition of "equity trader"?

A. No. The mere reporting of trades does not bring institutional salespersons within the scope of the Rule. If, however, institutional salespersons effect transactions on behalf of their institutional customers in the Nasdaq or OTC markets, then they are acting as traders and must qualify through the Series 55 examination.

Questions regarding the equity trader qualification requirements and the Series 55 examination, may be directed to one of the following persons in NASD Regulation's Testing and Continuing Education Department: Carole B. Hartzog, Lead Qualifications Analyst, at (301) 590-6696; Elaine P. Warren, Senior Qualifications Analyst, at (301) 590-6135; or Eva E. Cichy, Qualifications Analyst, at (301) 208-2789.

Qualifications Update

The implementation of Web CRD will result in changes to the NASD qualification programs and procedures. Below is a brief description of these changes.

Series 8 Replaced By Series 9 And Series 10

Since it became effective in 1980, the General Securities Sales Supervisor Examination (Series 8) has been administered in two parts with 100 questions each, and is graded on the basis of two group scores. A candidate must receive at least a 70 percent score in Options (the Options Group) and at least 70 percent in Part 2 plus Municipal Securities (the General Group) to receive a passing grade on the Series 8.

Effective with the rollout of Web CRD, the Series 8 will be converted into two separate examinations; Series 9 will be the Options Group and Series 10 will be the General Group. A candidate will be required to pass both exams to qualify as a General Securities Sales Supervisor or Branch Office Manager. Below is the subject matter covered on the Series 9 and Series 10.

To register a candidate on Web CRD as a General Securities Sales Supervisor, the position(s) SU and/or BM must be requested. Valid windows for both the Series 9 and Series 10 will be opened. The score for each test will be posted on Web CRD and upon passing both, the candidate's SU and/or BM position(s) will be approved. A candidate who fails either examination will be able to reschedule only the failed exam by requesting either the Series 9 or Series 10.

|-----------|--|---------------------|--------------|----------|
| Series 9 | Regulation of Options | 55 | 1 1/2 Hrs. | $50 |
| Series 10 | Municipal Securities Regulation | 145 | 4 Hrs. | $60 |
| | Sales Supervision Account Supervision Compliance, Recordkeeping, and Financial Responsibility Regulations Affecting the Operation of Securities Markets | | | |

120-Day Exam Windows

Since the automation of the NASD examination programs in 1979, enrollment windows have been valid for 90 days for all examinations with the exception of the Series 6 that had a 120-day window. Effective with the implementation of Web CRD, all exam windows will be valid for 120 days. Note that this change will not affect the waiting period between failed attempts.

The following persons in NASD Regulation's Testing and Continuing Education Department may be contacted for additional information about qualifications and testing: Eva Cichy at (301) 208-2789; Carole Hartzog at (301) 590-6696; and Elaine Warren at (301) 590-6135.

Continuing Education Open Meeting In Chicago

The Securities Industry/Regulatory Council on Continuing Education (Council) will hold its next open meeting for industry firms in Chicago on Thursday, October 14, from 3:00 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Firms located in the Chicago area will receive personal invitations to the open meeting sometime in September.

- ❖ Documenting Firm Element implementation.
- ❖ Firm Element training materials used.
- ❖ How firms are using any Firm Element resources available from vendors or SROs.

The meeting in October will be the latest in a series of open meetings held by the Council. The particular goal of this meeting will be to obtain input from firms on topics such as:

- ❖ Preparing the Annual Needs Analysis and Written Training Plan.
- ❖ Creating a training program for supervisors.
- ❖ Tracking and documenting Firm Element compliance.
- ❖ Training ideas and resources.
- ❖ Undertaking the Firm Element Needs Analysis.
- ❖ Writing the Training Plan.

The meeting will be comprised of a series of roundtable discussions facilitated by members of the Firm Element Committee of the Council at which firms can share their experiences and challenges in complying with the Firm Element. Results of the discussions will then be shared with all in attendance. The Firm Element Committee will use the input to help all firms comply with the Continuing Education Rules through Council publications or other media.

Questions about the Continuing Education Open Forum or NASD Regulation's Continuing Education Program may be directed to John Linnehan, Continuing Education, NASD Regulation, Inc., at (301) 208-2932, or Daniel M. Sibears, Member Regulation, NASD Regulation, Inc., at (202) 728-8221.

Appointment Scheduling At Local Sylvan Centers

At a recent meeting with members of the Sylvan Franchise Owners Association, the topic of scheduling appointments at local centers was discussed. Two important facts emerged from the discussion:

1. Scheduling appointments at the local center can provide for more flexibility in appointment times. Local center staff has closer control of the appointment scheduling software to better serve candidate needs. They also have the authority to extend a center's hours to accommodate more appointments.

2. Local center staff are able and willing to schedule group appointments. In order to schedule a group appointment at a local level, two conditions must be met:

- The group is limited to a maximum of 20 candidates.
- Candidate names and Social Security numbers must be provided at the time of scheduling. The center staff cannot block spaces without the candidate information.

Note: Group scheduling services will, of course, also continue to be provided by NASDR's Field Support Services (FSS) team. FSS can be reached at (800) 999-6647. The Sylvan franchise owners are committed to providing NASD members, and their candidates, with the best service possible. The franchise owners encourage us to make use of the local services available.

Attention Detroit Area Candidates

An alternative to testing at the Troy or Livonia centers in Michigan is Windsor, Ontario, Canada. Located just across the U.S./Canadian border, the Windsor testing location is convenient for Detroit-area candidates. Visit the Test Center Locations Web Page for the address and phone number for the Windsor, Ontario location.

Testing And Continuing Education - Year 2000

NASD Regulation and Sylvan have taken all necessary steps to ensure that their respective delivery systems are Y2K compliant. We believe, therefore, that testing and continuing education delivery will proceed seamlessly into 2000. There may be localized problems, such as power outages, but they are not expected to be widespread.

Security Procedures And Storage Of Personal Belongings At Sylvan Testing Centers

Sylvan Technology Centers place a great deal of emphasis on the security of the client's test, and security in the testing environment.

Upon arrival at the testing center, candidates must read, thumbprint, and sign a Rules of Conduct Form. These forms are returned to NASD Regulation at the end of each month to become part of a permanent file. Candidates who refuse to sign and thumbprint the Rules of Conduct Form will not be permitted to test.

After the candidate returns the Rules of Conduct Form to the Test Center Administrator, one form of official, government-issued, valid identification bearing a photo (or a physical description of the candidate in states without photograph driver's licenses), and a signature must be presented. The name on the identification should match the name of the candidate as he or she is registered with the NASD. Candidates with recent, legal name changes will need to provide official, original documentation of the change (for example, an original marriage license).

Before entering the testing room, candidates will be asked to place all personal belongings, including programmable digital watches, and purses/wallets in a locker. Non-programmable, non-financial calculators are permitted in the testing room. The candidate will maintain the key to the locker until the testing or continuing education session has been completed. Candidates should keep in mind that the size of the lockers in most centers is not large. Briefcases and/or portable computer equipment may not fit in the lockers provided. Larger items, and those items of value that the candidate may not feel comfortable placing in a locker, should not be brought to the testing center.

Audio and video recording equipment is located in the testing room. Sylvan Technology Centers archive the tapes to be reviewed by Sylvan corporate personnel, and forwarded to NASD Regulation if inappropriate behavior is suspected.

ADA Testing: Re-Schedules And The Cancellation Of Accommodations

When special testing accommodations have been approved by NASD Regulation, the Sylvan Special Accommodations Department coordinates the necessary resources to provide appropriate accommodations for the candidate.

If the candidate wishes to re-schedule or cancel an appointment, the firm's Registration Department must contact the NASD Special Accommodations representative at (800) 999-6647, Option 3, to ensure that the approved accommodations will be re-arranged for the new testing or continuing education session date.

The process, as described in the paragraph above, must be re-initiated by the firm's Registration Department to get a new appointment scheduled. Do not use the Sylvan Telephony System, local Sylvan Technology Center, or the Sylvan Call Center for this purpose.

Any questions regarding special accommodations for candidates should be directed to the NASD Regulation Special Accommodations Coordinator at (800) 999-6647, Option 3.

Sylvan Appointment Scheduling During November And December 1999

Due to an anticipated increase in volume, demand for appointments at Sylvan Testing Centers is expected to peak during the months of November and December 1999.

Sylvan is taking a proactive approach to ensure that centers have the capacity to handle the increased volume of business.

However, NASD Regulation encourages candidates who will require continuing education and testing appointments during the November/December timeframe to schedule appointments as far in advance as possible.

For more information, contact Linda Christensen, Member Regulation, at (610) 627-0377.

NASD Disciplinary Actions

In July and August 1999, the NASD announced the following disciplinary actions against these firms and individuals. Publication of these sanctions alerts members and their associated persons to actionable behavior and the penalties that may result.

District 1 - Northern California (the counties of Monterey, San Benito, Fresno, and Inyo, and the remainder of the state north or west of such counties), northern Nevada (the counties of Esmeralda and Nye, and the remainder of the state north or west of such counties), and Hawaii

July Actions

Gregory Paul Maggipinto (CRD #1042789, Registered Representative, San Jose, California) was censured, fined $25,000, suspended from association with any NASD member in any capacity for six months, and required to requalify by exam in all capacities. The National Adjudicatory Council (NAC) imposed the sanctions following appeal of a San Francisco District Business Conduct Committee (DBCC) decision. The sanctions were based on findings that Maggipinto effected securities transactions in the account of a public customer without the prior knowledge or consent of the customer.

Maggipinto has appealed this action to the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and the sanctions are not in effect pending consideration of the appeal. (NASD Case #C01970025)

August Actions

Ivan Douglas Bauer (CRD #1715502, Registered Representative, Penryn, California) submitted an Offer of Settlement pursuant to which he was censured, fined $52,900, and barred from association with any NASD member in any capacity. Without admitting or denying the allegations, Bauer consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that he participated in private securities transactions without providing prior written notification to, and obtaining approval from, his member firm. (NASD Case #C01980021)

Patrick Albert Beadle (CRD #2707932, Registered Representative, Oakland, California) was censured, fined $25,000, and barred from association with any NASD member in any capacity. The sanctions were based on findings that Beadle failed to respond to NASD requests for information. (NASD Case #C01980019)

Gary Anthony Familathe, Jr. (CRD #2665609, Registered Representative, San Francisco, California) was fined $25,000 and barred from association with any NASD member in any capacity. The sanctions were based on findings that Familathe failed to respond to NASD requests for information. (NASD Case #C01990003)

Leonard John Ialeggio (CRD #254515, Registered Representative, Danville, California) was censured, fined $15,000, and ordered to requalify by exam as a general securities representative. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit denied Ialeggio's petition for review of a May 1998 SEC decision and affirmed the sanctions imposed. The sanctions were based on findings that Ialeggio submitted expense vouchers to his member firm's parent company and received payment for travel expenses totaling $8,502.50, to which he was not entitled. Ialeggio also induced the company to pay $35,000 for his country club dues, a payment to which he was not entitled. (NASD Case #C01930044)

Gene Alex Jung (CRD #2807594, Registered Representative, San Francisco, California) was fined $40,000 and barred from association with any NASD member in any capacity. The sanctions were based on findings that Jung submitted a Form U-4 in which he failed to disclose his criminal convictions. (NASD Case #C01990001)

Thomas F. White & Co., Incorporated (CRD #7661, San Francisco, California), Robert Thomson Angle (CRD #811495, Registered Principal, San Francisco, California), and Peter William Shea (CRD #420778, Registered Principal, Alameda, California) submitted an Offer of Settlement pursuant to which they were censured and fined $20,000, jointly and severally, and the firm and Angle were separately fined $30,000, jointly and severally. Without admitting or denying the allegations, the respondents consented to the described sanctions and to the entry of findings that the firm, acting through Angle and Shea, failed to establish and implement adequate written supervisory procedures in order to detect and prevent unsuitable transactions with respect to the accounts of public customers and to supervise an individual's activities in connection with those accounts. The findings also stated that the firm, acting through Angle, entered into settlement agreements with customers that contained confidentiality clauses which prohibited or discouraged those customers from discussing the settlements with or disclosing the underlying facts to the NASD and other regulators. (NASD Case #C01980016)

District 2 - Southern California (that part of the state south or east of the counties of Monterey, San Benito, Fresno, and Inyo), southern Nevada (that part of the state south or east of the counties of Esmeralda and Nye), and the former U.S. Trust Territories

July Actions

Richard Vu Nguyen (CRD #2488905, Registered Representative, Fullerton, California) was censured, fined $75,000, barred from association with any NASD member in any capacity, and ordered to pay $32,499 in restitution to public customers. The sanctions were based on findings that Nguyen executed transactions through a member firm while not registered with the NASD. Nguyen also failed to respond completely to NASD requests for information and failed to appear for an interview with the NASD staff. (NASD Case #C02980028)

Fernando Patricio Rodriguez (CRD #1587712, Registered Principal, Long Beach, California) submitted an Offer of Settlement pursuant to which he was censured, fined $14,000, and barred from association with any NASD member in any capacity. Without admitting or denying the allegations, Rodriguez consented to the sanctions and to the entry of findings that a public customer brought cash payments totaling $800 to Rodriguez for the purpose of paying Individual Retirement Account fixed annuity premiums.
